

Frosty the Intern

Frosty the Intern was a jolly happy soul
With a coal black shirt and a maintenance badge
And two boots that had steel toes.

Frosty the Intern is a worker they all say
He was made of fluff but the mentors know
How he came to work each day.

There must have been some magic
In that old tool belt he wore
For when they placed it round his waist
He began to dance around!

Frosty the intern was alive as he could be
And the mentors say he could laugh and work
Just the same as each of them.

Thumpety thump thump, thumpety thump thump
Look at Frosty go

Thumpety thump thump, thumpety thump thump

Over the rounds we go

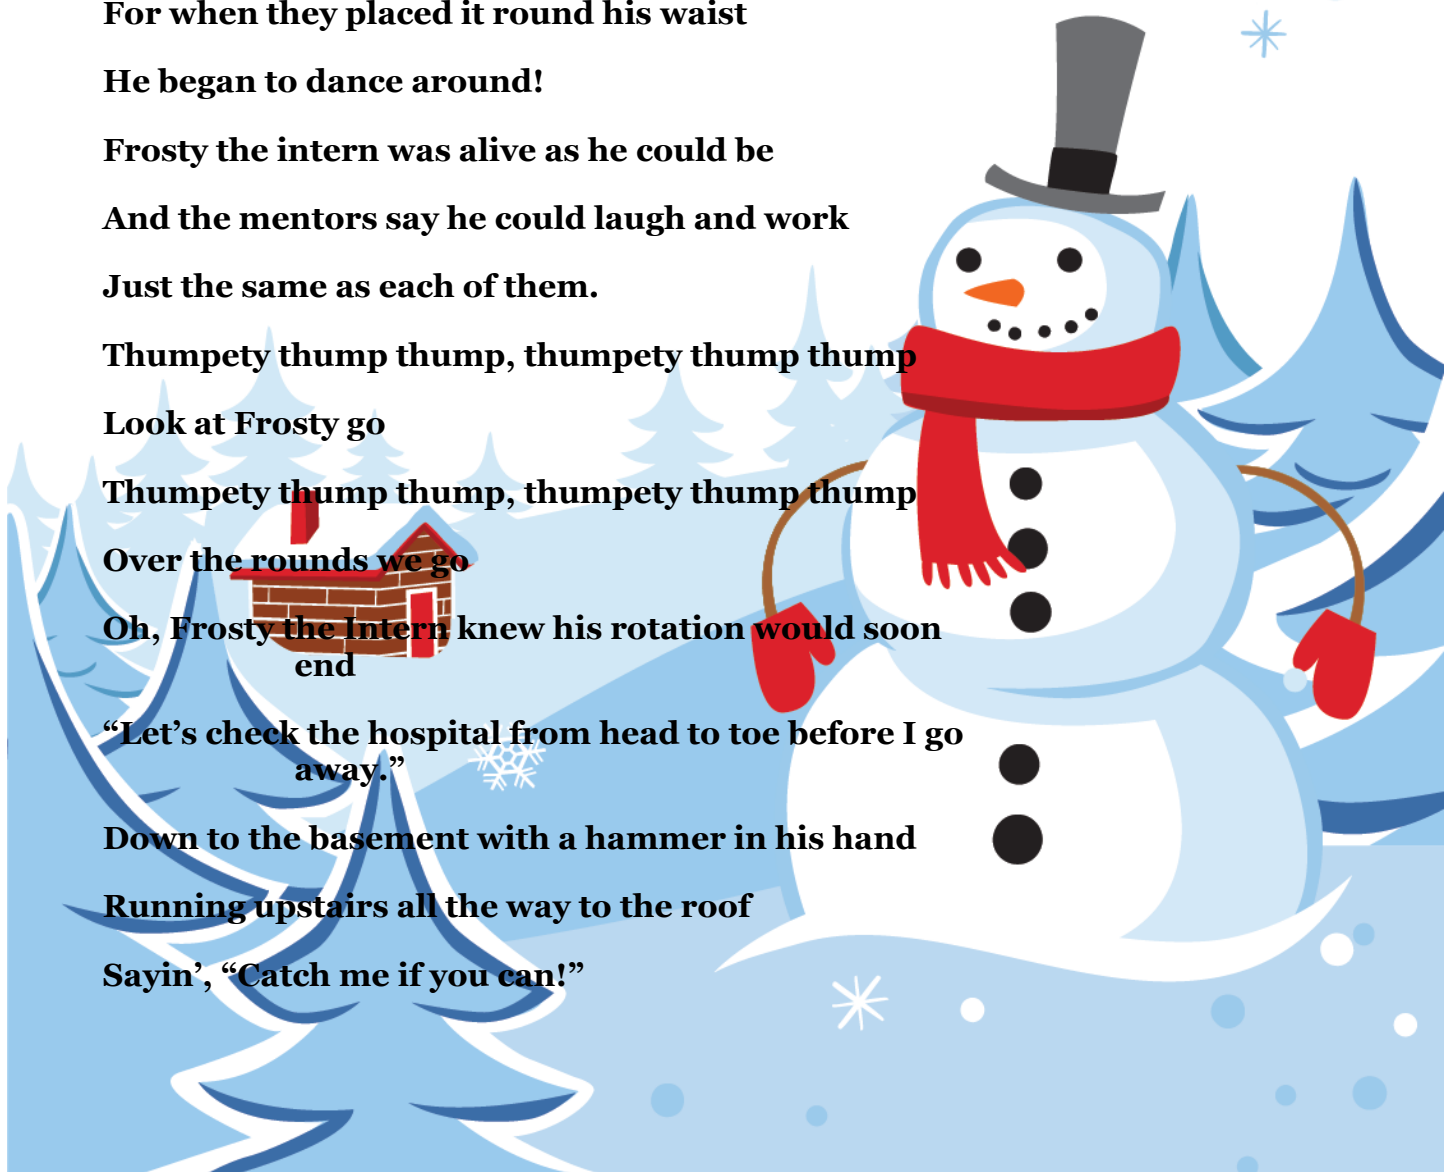

Oh, Frosty the Intern knew his rotation would soon end

“Let’s check the hospital from head to toe before I go away.”

Down to the basement with a hammer in his hand

Running upstairs all the way to the roof

Sayin’, “Catch me if you can!”

Hanging out at the coffee shop
